

Animal Feelings

I think the feelings that most animals have are: joy, sadness, love and fear. Animals also express there feelings differently. Dogs wag there tails, Cats make sounds out of there mouths, birds chirp, and many other feelings animals have that are a little hard to explain, but some could be: confusion, exhaustion or many others. People might not really understand that animal feelings are very similar to human feelings. Almost all animals can repeat some of our feelings, like jump up when we are very happy, cry when we are sad or maybe run when we are mad or scared. Animals do have feelings and I think it is interesting to see how the human species and the animal species are so similar.

Animal Feelings
By
Suzanne Haynes

