Governor extends "Stay Safe, Stay Healthy"

Gov. Inslee yesterday extended his "Stay Safe, Stay Healthy" order through at least Monday, May 4. That means the earliest businesses could re-open may be May 4. The governor indicated that while the order had brought the state to build hospital capacity, we have not yet seen the full weight of the virus, based on current modeling performed by the University of Washington. This epidemiological model has predicted over 1,000 deaths if we kept the order in place and showed that we are not yet seeing the full impact of the virus.

The governor indicated that while the state has taken certain actions to assist small businesses, and then there are actions that are the responsibility of the state and federal governments. Several financial resources from these two entities are available as part of the Families First and CARES Act federal legislation recently adopted by Congress. The state's resources that could help them through these tough times. As the owner of a small business myself, I understand what many of them are going through and I want to make sure they know where to find these resources and how to access them.

I have some tips on dealing with those unwanted scams. If report is about an individual or private group, use "report this scam." To comply with Gov. Inslee's "Stay Home, Stay Healthy" order, I have presented an update on the city's response to COVID-19 during the Renton City Council's Committee of the Whole meeting on Monday, April 6, at 5 p.m. You can watch the recording and public hearing by decision they have enacted over the past month.
